REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF NURSES TO THE RESIDENT PHYSICIAN.

There have been many changes since the last graduation, in the personnel of the nursing staff and in the curriculum.

While we record with regret the resignation of several graduates, we feel at the same time pride that our nurses are in demand for desirable positions.

Miss Florence McLennan, the capable head of the surgical building for eight years, left us last October for private nursing. Miss Harriet Mabee, night superintendent for nearly two years, is now in San Francisco, where she is assistant superintendent at the St. Francis Hospital. Miss Nellie Steeves, head nurse of the accident ward for four years, left to accept a position as assistant superintendent in the Addison Gilbert Hospital of Gloucester.

These nurses, and others who have left, established a record for very efficient, loyal service to the hospital, and they took with them the good-will and best wishes of all their associates.

In educational methods the changes have been those that we believe will produce more uniform excellence and greater thoroughness. It was decided to give up outside instruction, to strengthen the hospital courses, and to require a higher educational standard for admission.

Miss Amy P. Miller, a graduate of the Johns Hopkins Hospital, and of the course in Hospital Economy at Teachers' College, Columbia University, has been added to the Training School staff as an instructor. She has the probationers in class every day of the first two months of their probationary period, and she supplements the instruction of Drs. Badger and Green in a manner that enables the pupils to assimilate to a greater degree the advantages offered them. Since Miss Miller came we are able to have late afternoon classes for the night nurses, obviating the necessity of calling them in the middle of the day.

The work of hospital nursing is acknowledged to be so absorbingly interesting that nurses-in-training are prone to neglect other interests, and at the end of three years to lack the mental resources that are so valuable to the nurse herself and to her patients who may depend upon her for diversion.

To remedy this situation in a measure, Miss Susan Tracy has been giving the senior class lessons twice a month in Invalid Occupations. This innovation is felt by experienced teachers of nurses to be an important one in promoting their efficiency.

During January, February and March, Professor William Ward is giving the seniors a very interesting series of talks on current events. This last is made possible through the generosity of Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer.

The course in Dietetics, already a strong course, is to include a few lessons in the laboratory on food bacteria and the chemistry of digestion.

The instruction in Materia Medica is now reenforced by practice with drugs in the pharmacy under Mr. Godsoe's direction.

Present day standards require training schools to prepare their pupils so that they may be able to pass the state board examination for registration.

Among other kinds of experience the schools must furnish maternity work. We, unfortunately, are obliged to send our nurses to other hospitals for that purpose. Until now it has been necessary to send them to New York, but we have recently been able to affiliate with the Wesson Maternity Hospital of Springfield, which is much nearer home and where our pupils have also the opportunity to care for private patients while learning this specialty.

We are sending two nurses instead of one to the Boston Lying-in Hospital for the six months' training. Six months is a long time to devote to one specialty, particularly in the senior year when the nurses are keen to take advantage of the diverse experience to be gained in our own wards. With the exception of the length of time required by this affiliation, it is a very popular one.

I believe our experiment of placing senior pupils in charge of the open wards under supervision of expert graduate nurses will work out satisfactorily. Each supervisor has from three to five wards under her care. There are drawbacks to be sure, but they seem to be more than counterbalanced by the advantages of the system. Even in the short time that is allowed for the experience it is possible for the pupil to determine whether she cares to pursue executive work, and for us to know whether she is adapted to it. The supervisors are meanwhile getting admirable training for positions as superintendents of nursing schools, and there is a closer connection maintained between the administrative offices and the wards than was possible under the old system.

To obviate the annoyance of frequent change of operating nurses in the surgical building, and to insure more systematic and thorough instruction in surgical technic, a graduate nurse has been placed in the amphitheater whose chief business it is to observe and instruct the pupils while on operating duty. These pupils now have a four months' service in place of two. The system of shorter working hours, established about a year ago, is appreciated and showing good results. We are fortunate in having had with one exception comparatively little serious illness among the nurses. We sadly report the death, from septicaemia, March 1st, of Mrs. French, class 1913. Mrs. French was one of the most promising and popular women in her class. Her death is sincerely mourned by all the school.

The number of nurses has been increased gradually, but perhaps as quickly as it is possible to assimilate them, for increased numbers mean added strain on every other department.

The present senior class numbers thirty-seven, including five McLean graduates. Two of the class during the past year dropped out on account of ill health. There has been a considerable diminution in the second class. One left to get married, one is on an indefinite sick-leave of absence, and five have been dropped for inefficiency. There are twenty-nine in the intermediate class, including four McLean graduates. There are fifty-five nurses in the class of 1913. We have eighteen more pupils in the school than at this time last year. Eighty-one probationers entered the hospital during the year, fifty-one of whom have been accepted as pupils.

We have given a four months' course in general medical and surgical work to twelve pupils of the Children's Hospital, a two months' course to four pupils of the Melrose Hospital, and two pupils of the Choate Hospital of Woburn are now taking a three months' course. The New England Baptist, the Peabody and Beverly Hospitals have continued to send nurses for experience in the Out-Patient Department and Accident Ward. Ten McLean nurses are taking a post-graduate course.

There have been seven accepted applicants for the six months' post-graduate course, three of whom finished their time and received a certificate.

As a rule the pupils who are given these opportunities appreciate it and adapt themselves very well to the new environment.

Looking into the future, among other things that it would be desirable to do, I feel that there should be an effort to create some scholarships and a loan fund for pupils who desire further special training as teachers of nurses, or for those who need financial assistance during the period of training.

If we were to select a pupil nurse from each class who had the natural qualifications of a teacher, to take the course in Hospital Economy at Teachers' College, with the understanding that she was to return to us for some definite length of time, we would only be following a precedent established by other schools.

The nurses have been indebted to several members of the Ladies' Committee for tickets to delightful musical and dramatic entertainments, which have been greatly enjoyed.

The sitting room furnished by the ladies for the graduate nurses is a constant source of pleasure and recreation. The number of people who have rendered valuable service to the school without remuneration is too large to mention individually, but all are gratefully remembered.

Those who are interested in nurses and their work rejoice in the ever-increasing opportunities of usefulness that are opening up to them. We deplore the popular superstitions regarding the profession such as: "The ten year limit to active work," "The disappointment and dissatisfaction of the graduate nurse"—and we regret the magnification of the hardships and long hours during and after training. Confident that these beliefs on the part of many were erroneous, positive after nineteen years of experience and acquaintance with nurses in every line of nursing work that these beliefs were libelous of the greater part of graduate nurses of good schools, I have sought to confirm my convictions by statistics of our own school — one of the oldest in the country. I think that I have not only proved my point, but that I could show by numerous letters that the compensations of nursing work far out-balance the hardships.

Following is the result of my investigation:

Since the school was organized we have graduated eight hundred and sixty-seven nurses; sixty-seven have died. We were not able to get the correct addresses of eighty. Two hundred and thirty-six have married, several going to remote parts of the country. Several nurses whom we know are doing private work, are traveling with patients, and letters have not reached them. Of the remainder we have received replies from over four hundred. One hundred and forty-seven are doing private work, fifty-four of whom have been in the field from ten to thirty-one years. Thirty-eight are in active nursing work, who graduated over twenty years ago. Eighteen are practising physicians; forty-two are superintendents of hospitals, one in Greece and one in Turkey; ten are superintendents of training schools; forty-three are in different kinds of institution work; four are proprietors of private hospitals. There are several office, school and district nurses. One is editor-in-chief of the American Journal of Nursing; another, Lady Superintendent of the Victorian Order of Nurses. Three have turned to farming, one is a dentist, three are anæsthetizers, one is a doctor of osteopathy, two are proprietors of stores, and one is an artist. Several are engaged in social service work. There are only a very few who have taken up something entirely different from nursing, and the most important fact is that only nine out of four hundred and fifteen said they regretted their choice of nursing. The majority were emphatically grateful that they had chosen it as a profession. One said that her nurse training is prized more than her college degree.

Thus I feel justified in congratulating the members of the graduating class on entering a field where the large majority of their predecessors have found ample scope for their talents, also happiness and deep satisfaction.

SARA E. PARSONS,
Superintendent of the Training School.

TRAINING SCHOOL FOR NURSES.

The Massachusetts General Hospital was established in 1811, and has from the first been recognized as one of the leading hospitals for the care of general diseases. It has on its staff men of distinguished ability. In connection with the Hospital there has developed one of the largest Out-Patient Departments in the world. The daily average of patients in the Hospital is 290. The daily clinic in the Out-Patient Department is between 400 and 500 patients. The therapeutic resources of the Hospital include hydrotherapy, light therapy, and Zander departments. Because of the large staff of nurses, particular and individual care of the patients, unusual in large hospitals, is carried out, and an exceptional opportunity is given for the training of nurses.

The School for Nurses was established in 1873, and now the nursing staff consists of 23 graduates and 150 pupils. There are 867 alumnæ.

During the first two years of training the pupils work under the instruction of graduate nurses in the medical, surgical, orthopedic, children's, skin, throat and nerve wards. For obstetrical experience they go to the Wesson Maternity Hospital of Springfield, and to the Boston Lying-in Hospital.

A certain number of wards are conducted by senior pupils under the supervision of expert graduate nurses. This offers a valuable opportunity for executive experience.

Illustrative material such as the manikin, skeleton, microscopic slides, lantern pictures, and specimens is freely used.

Realizing that the School is so situated that pupils may avail themselves of some of the opportunities for education offered in a city like Boston in art, music, and historical interests, a special effort is made by the instructors to encourage these diversions and to impress upon the pupils the desirability of cultivating such intellectual interests so that their three years in Boston will make them not only good nurses but broader and more cultured women.

It is the purpose of the School to maintain a high standard commensurate with the opportunities it has to offer, and to assist in meeting the demands of the public which is to-day recognizing the trained nurse as an essential factor in solving many economic and social problems. She is not only more and more in request as a home nurse but, when qualified by education and experience, she is called upon to teach nurses, to organize schools and hospitals at home and abroad, to help in preventive medicine warfare as a social worker, tenement house inspector, school nurse, district nurse, and tuberculosis nurse. She may be invited to take charge of milk stations, to inspect training schools in connection with state registration, and to manage nurse registries.

GENERAL SCHEME OF EDUCATION.

Probationary Period.

It is designed to give probationers such an amount of theory and practice in the elementary nursing methods as will lead them gradually to the more responsible duties of nursing. Demonstrations are given in the class room but the lessons are put in practice in the wards under the observation of the supervising nurses, so that at the end of three months the pupil is familiar with ward routine and discipline, and can judge quite well what she is undertaking.

First Year.

During the first year in the training school, elementary anatomy, physiology, biology, bacteriology, materia medica, bandaging, and the principles of nursing are taught. Bedside clinics are conducted by one of the medical instructors.

Second Year.

During the second year the clinics are continued and surgical and medical diseases are discussed; massage, dietetics, and operating-room work are learned. Abstracts of lectures and clinics are required of the pupils.

Third Year.

During the third year lectures by specialists are given and the various departments of nursing are brought to the attention of the pupil. Obstetrical training is given at some of the affiliated hospitals, and so far as is possible the senior is given an opportunity to do some executive work or to get experience in some specialty that she may prefer. Field work in the way of visits to other hospitals, milk stations, etc., is a feature, and each senior will be required to write at least two papers on some nursing subject.

Postgraduate Opportunities.

Graduates who wish to specialize in the care of cases of mental diseases may, by spending a year at McLean Hospital, secure the diploma of that school, or they may take a six months' post-graduate course, after which a certificate will be given them. This experience opens up a large, lucrative field of work. A two months' course of observation in the wards is offered to Massachusetts General Hospital alumnæ who wish to study methods adopted since their graduation. An administrative course is offered to those graduates who wish to prepare themselves to take positions as hospital superintendents. This course includes observation and instruction in all the administrative departments, and requires from four to six months' attendance, depending on the former experience of the nurse. Among the many important measures studied are the methods of contracting for hospital supplies.

There are 23 positions on the nursing staff that command salaries from forty dollars ($40.00) a month upward, according to the responsibilities of the position, which offer good experience to graduates who desire executive work, and the demand for graduates to fill positions in other hospitals and in different fields of nursing work considerably exceeds the supply.

Applicants.

The candidate should apply to the Superintendent of Nurses in person; if this is impossible, a written application may be submitted. The hours for seeing applicants are between 10 and 12 A.M. Wednesdays, and at other times by appointment. In selecting candidates for training, the preference is given to those who have had at least elementary Latin, chemistry, biology, anatomy, and physiology, other things being equal.

Age.

There is no arbitrary rule as to an applicant's age, but she should preferably be between twenty and thirty years old.

Education.

A high school education or its equivalent is essential, and those who have had a normal school or college course are preferred if they meet the requirements in other particulars.

Applicants who have not studied the sciences that relate to nursing, viz: anatomy and physiology, bacteriology, chemistry and sanitation, are recommended to take such a course before entering the Hospital.

Simmons College, Boston, offers a one term course in the above subjects to high school graduates, and Teachers' College of Columbia University, New York City, offers a preparatory course covering a year's college work.

Both of these courses are highly desirable and applicants holding either of these certificates would be favorably considered.

Physique.

The applicant should be of average size and weight, and must be in good health. Persons with organic defects cannot be received. The Resident Physician and the Superintendent of Nurses decide as to their fitness for the work and may retain or dismiss them at the end of the probationary period. The Superintendent of Nurses may, with the approval of the Resident Physician and the Chairman of the Advisory Committee, terminate the connection of a pupil with the School at any time for reasons which may seem to them sufficient. Classes are formed in June, October, and February.

Hours of Duty and Recreation.

The pupil averages not less than eight hours per day in the wards. She has one half-day per week, four or five hours each Sunday, and two hours daily off duty, for recreation and study. Six weeks' vacation are allowed during period of training. Sick nurses are cared for by the Hospital for a reasonable length of time, but time lost from sickness, or otherwise, must be made up.

Home.

There is a pleasant, comfortable home on the hospital grounds which accommodates one hundred and twenty-one of the nurses, and has a good library and a piano. The new wing in which the graduates live overlooks the Charles River, and has a roof, furnished with hammocks and steamer chairs, which is used by all the nurses. The remainder of the pupils have rooms in two houses outside the hospital grounds which are fitted up comfortably, and have ample bathing facilities. An assistant of the Superintendent resides in each of these houses.

Probationary Period.

The first three months of probation are to enable the applicants to decide definitely whether they really care enough for nursing to agree to complete the three years' course ; also to enable the Superintendent of Nurses to determine whether the applicant is adapted to the work and qualified to make a success of it. During this period the probationers are maintained by the Hospital but receive no financial compensation.

Admission Requirements.

If probationers are accepted they must be prepared to pay for text-books and uniforms and to sign a contract to finish the course.

Compensation.

The education and experience are considered ample compensation for services rendered. The monthly allowance of six dollars ($6.00) is given to defray the cost of uniforms, books, and carfares. Each pupil should have a private allowance of at least fifty dollars ($50.00) a year for personal expenses.

Breakage.

A deposit of ten dollars ($10.00) will be required when the pupil is accepted, to cover breakage during the course of training. Any excess of deposit remaining at graduation will be refunded.

Graduation.

When the three years' course is completed and the examinations are passed, a diploma will be given.

COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

Probationers' Course.

Three Months.

Lectures. Miss Parsons and Miss Miller.

Dust and its dangers.
Personal hygiene :
  Bathing.
  Care of bowels, teeth, hair, hands, and feet.
Waste and repair of body.

Food-stuffs.
Physiology of digestion.
Absorption.

Douches — catheterization.
Surgical dressings.
Surgical supplies.
Sterilizing instruments, etc.

Junior Year.

ANATOMY. 21 hours. Dr. Green.

The elementary histology of the tissues is taught in connection with the gross anatomy, and the attempt is made to correlate this instruction with that given in physiology. Especial attention is paid to surface anatomy, not only to bony landmarks in relation to fractures and measurements, but to the location of the large blood vessels with reference to the control of hemorrhage. The lectures are illustrated by pictures, lantern slides, microscopic sections, the manikin, fresh organs from autopsy, and demonstrations on the living subject. Particular emphasis is laid on the use of the catheter and the rectal tube in the male and female pelvis. In general, the practical rather than the academic aspects of the subject are made prominent.

BIOLOGY AND BACTERIOLOGY. 13 hours. Dr. Green.

The primary concepts of vegetable and animal life are briefly considered, and the relation of lower organisms to human disease. The cellular theory is explained, and the normal development of the human embryo outlined.

After a sketch of the development of the science of bacteriology and the great importance of its discoveries to medicine and surgery, the nature, action and growth of bacteria are described and the methods of identifying and cultivating them studied. The cultural and microscopic characteristics of all the common surgical bacteria, together with the manner in which each group of bacteria produces disease, are demonstrated by means of material from the hospital laboratories. Great emphasis is laid on the practical application of bacteriology to the treatment and the prevention of disease. The history and evolution of antisepsis and asepsis are sketched, methods of sterilization described at length, and the duties of a nurse at a surgical operation explained. Instruction is given in methods of avoiding infection, both for the nurse and for the patient, and in its prompt recognition and treatment. The elementary principles of immunity and of the use of bacterial vaccines are outlined.

PHYSIOLOGY AND HYGIENE. 14 hours. Dr. Badger.

The method of instruction is by weekly lectures, when the nurses are expected to take notes from which they are periodically required to prepare abstracts ; by demonstrations and recitations ; and by assigned reading in a text-book. The attempt is made to have the lectures simple and informal, to encourage the asking of questions by the class, and to emphasize always the practical importance of the subject under study to surgical nursing. There are two written examinations during the course.

Bedside Clinics. 16 hours.

Principles of Nursing. Quizzes. 34 hours. Miss Miller.

Bandaging. 8 hours. Dr. Green.

The instruction is given to small sections of the class once a week. After consideration of the manufacture, economy, and indications for bandages, the fundamental figures of bandaging are taught followed by detailed instruction in the common bandages used for the several regions of the body. By the use of artificial legs and of patients from the wards, each nurse has opportunity to apply the various bandages under the individual direction of the instructor. The application of swathes and the preparation of the ordinary splints are demonstrated by the instructor or by one of the head nurses.

Materia Medica. Mr. Godsoe, Pharmacist.

Weights and measures and how to calculate percentage.
Drugs — their uses ; active principles and doses.
Pharmaceutical preparations.
Making powders, ointments, and simple solutions.
Poisons and antidotes.
Care of stock from an economical standpoint.
Care of rubber goods and how to make repairs.
The nurses will receive this instruction in the pharmacy.

Hospital Expenses and Administration. Dr. Washburn.

Hospital Economy. Mr. Currier.

Laundry.

Intermediate Year.

Surgical Diseases. 35 hours. Dr. Green.

Trauma.
Malformations.
Neoplasms.
Surgical Infections.

In the discussion of each disease, its causes, nature, symptoms, recognition and immediate treatment are presented. The subjects are abundantly illustrated by lantern slides, pathologic specimens and patients from the wards. So far as possible the case method of teaching is employed. Attention is also paid to diseases on the border line between medicine and surgery. The aim is to familiarize the nurse with the common appearances of disease, to fit her by this knowledge to care intelligently for the sick, and to prepare her to act promptly and efficiently in emergencies.

PATHOLOGY. Dr. Green.

The elementary pathology of the lesions produced by the various bacteria is taught in connection with this study. The nature of information is explained, and the repair of tissues and the healing of wounds studied. During the second year instruction is given in surgical anesthesia and in the surgical diseases. The method is similar to that of the first year — by weekly lectures, notes, abstracts, demonstrations, recitations, and two written examinations. Emphasis is laid on the practical application of the knowledge gained to the immediate care and subsequent nursing of surgical cases.

BEDSIDE CLINICS. 12 hours.
THERAPEUTICS. 5 hours.
INFECTIOUS DISEASES OF CHILDHOOD. 2 hours.
CONTAGIOUS DISEASES. 5 hours.
MEDICAL EMERGENCIES. 1 hour.

DIETETICS. Miss McCullough.

Food — Its composition, nutritive value, digestibility, and its relation to health and disease. 15 hours.

Dietaries — Elementary bacteriology in its relation to food, illustrated by microscope and cultures.

Invalid cooking in ten lessons of 2 hours.

Test lesson, 2½ hours.

Field lesson, 2½ hours.

Practical experience in preparation of extra and special diets; infants' formulæ; responsibility for the order and routine of the diet kitchen. 1 month.

OPERATING ROOM. 4 months. Miss Morrison.

ANESTHESIA. Dr. Allen.

A lecture is given to the class on the fundamental principles of surgical anesthesia and the methods of its production. At least twice during the year each nurse receives individual instruction in the actual administration of ether to patients for surgical operation, and is also taught the manufacture of cones and the care of ether patients.

A certain number of pupils who are specially interested get one month's experience.

MASSAGE. 10 lessons. Miss Taylor.
